

PROFESSORiate POLICY

Professoriate Policy

THE PROFESSORIATE

1 The title of Professor is conferred by the University of Law (the University) to give recognition for outstanding individual academic or professional distinction and leadership in a field of learning relevant to the mission. The title of Associate Professor reflects the need for an academic grade to which academic staff can aspire, but which is below full Professorial status. Conferment of all Professorial titles are cognisant of contribution domains within the Academic Career Framework.

2 The purpose of Professorships is to enable the following:

2.1 the recognition within the University of excellence in the area of educational, academic and professional development, achieved by individuals and thus providing an additional focus for aspiration;

2.2 the demonstration externally of the distinguished achievements by individuals in these areas of national and international quality;

2.3 the demonstration externally of the high level of
